HISTORY OF CALENDAR

The solar year consists of 365 days 5 hrs. 48 min. 48 sec. In the calendar known as the Julian calendar, arranged in BC 47 by Julius Caesar, the year was taken as being of 365 $\frac{1}{4}$ days and in order to get rid of the odd quarter of a day, an extra day was added- one in every fourth year and this was called Bissextile or leap year.

In India, Vikrami and a number of other calendars were being used till recently. In 1952, a committee was appointed to examine the different calendars and to suggest an accurate and uniform calendar for the whole of India.

On the basis of its report the Government adopted the national calendar based on Saka Era with Chaitra as its first month.
